Pope prays: Break rods of oppressors

Resist persecution, Christians urged

VATICAN CITY — In his Christmas Eve message, Pope Francis (XV) prayed for God to break the rods of the world's oppressors and marginalized Catholics in Iraq and China to resist persecution.

Speaking from the central balcony of St. Peter's Basilica in the Vatican, the pope began his Christmas Eve message by praying for the world's oppressed and marginalized Catholics. He said that the "rods of the world's oppressors" must be broken, and that the "chains of the world's oppressors" must be broken.

"The world has spread the light of goodness to all, but we have seen how many are still in the darkness," he said. "We pray for the world's oppressed and marginalized Catholics, that they may resist persecution and remain faithful to the Gospel."

The pope also mentioned the persecution of Christians in Iraq and China. He said that he was "deeply concerned" about the situation of Christians in these countries and that he was praying for them. He also mentioned the persecution of Christians in the Middle East and in Africa.

The major contribution to the book is the analysis of the role of the state in the development of the economy. The author argues that the state has played a crucial role in the development of the economy, particularly in the case of the United States. The book is a valuable contribution to the literature on the role of the state in economic development.

There are many reasons why the 1990s are a good time to start a new business. The economy is growing, and there are many opportunities for entrepreneurs. The government is providing many incentives for small businesses, and there are many resources available to help you get started. If you are looking for a new challenge, the 1990s are a great time to start a new business.
